

Reaching Out to the Individual Tourist

After several years of slow growth, international tourism is on the rebound. A return of both consumer and business confidence is bringing favourable conditions for both established and emerging tourism markets. According to the World Tourism Organization (UWTO), there is a clear shift in focus within the industry from external factors and crisis management, to the internal, competitive factors of destinations and products, such as product development, training, and promotion.

Date: 2007-02-26

Article link:

<https://www.tourism-review.com/travel-tourism-magazine-reaching-out-to-the-individual-tourist-article>

107