

Join Harry Potter Voyage with Princess Cruises

This November be on the lookout for the Harry Potter-themed cruise being launched by Princess Cruises from Los Angeles.

The inaugural cruise is for four nights and is called the Wizard Cruise. It will be on board the Golden Princess ship. There will be six hundred fans of Harry Potter enjoying this inaugural cruise. All of them are expected to be wearing robes and clutching wands while embarking on this inaugural cruise.

Whimsic Alley, a shop based in Los Angeles, is the organizer of the cruise. In fact, this shop resembles Diagon Valley, which is the high street that you can see in various Harry Potter books as well as film series. The various wizard as well as witch paraphernalia are sold here, including quills, wands and witches' hats. This is the same shop that organizes many Harry Potter themed camps too. They plan creating a similar fun experience on the cruise too.

In fact, the founder of this shop has stated that for the entire duration that the passengers will be on this cruise, they would be students of a wizard academy and subjected to similar challenges and ordeals too. Hence they plan to overwhelm their guests with activity along with a lot of entertainment, which will go on practically all through the day and night.

The Harry Potter cruise will depart on November 27. The cost for each person is $650. The price includes food, accommodation, along with on-board entertainment and all other activities.

Date: 2013-05-27

Article link:

<http://www.tourism-review.com/travel-tourism-magazine-princess-cruises-news-get-ready-for-harry-potter-voyage-article2135>