

Top Things You Need To Know About Medical Tourism

If you've ever considered planning your entire vacation around a plastic surgery enhancement, you're not alone. Medical tourism, or "med travel", is becoming one of the fastest growing trends in the field of cosmetic surgery. Recipients flock to exotic locations like Columbia, Singapore, or Thailand to have medical procedures performed at a significantly lower cost than they would in their own country. Rather than wait the years that it might take to have a hip or knee replaced, "medical tourists" can travel to a foreign country and have the procedure done as quickly as the day after they debark from the plane. It almost sounds too good to be true...
