

East African Etiquette for Solo Traveler

As a woman traveling on my own in East Africa it soon became apparent that there was a fine line between gestures of good will and those with a more romantic significance. Conversations with friendly locals would frequently lead to justifications of why I had a problem with marrying an African man, and potential suitors quickly overtook garrulous con men and sticky-fingered pickpockets on my list of people to avoid...

Date: 2008-02-25

Article link:

<http://www.tourism-review.com/travel-tourism-magazine-east-african-etiquette-for-solo-traveler-article431>