They were followed by German tourists, with 5.150 million, up 2.1%; those from Nordic countries, with EUR 3.413 million, up 18.5%; and the French, with 3.056 million, up 16.4%.

In the first seven months of the year, more than 34 million international tourists arrived, representing a 3.9% increase over the same period in 2012. The United Kingdom, the largest market for Spain, recorded a rise of 4.3% between January and July, while Germany, the second largest, rose 5.2% in the first seven months of the year.

Among the autonomous communities, Cataluña, with a rise of 5.1%, got the highest percentage of foreign visitors, 25.8% of the total arrivals. This was followed by the Balearic Islands, with an increase of 7.5% and 18.4% of arrivals.

In July, total expenses reached EUR 7.794 million, 4.3% more than in the same month last year. This was driven by the increase in tourist arrivals and the average expense per person. In July, the average expenses per person stood at EUR 992, up 1.3%, while the average daily expense grew to EUR 103, up 1.2%.

In July, Spain received 7.9 million foreign tourists, representing an increase of 2.9% over the same month last year, a new record since 1995. According to the data published in the Survey of Tourist Movements in Border (Frontur) Nordic, British, and Russian visitors contributed the most to the net growth in that month. Andalucía and Cataluña have been the most favored destinations by this increase.
