

TRANS-SIBERIAN RAILROAD - THE LONGEST RAIL LINE WORLDWIDE

The Trans-Siberian Railway, also called Trans-Sib, was built from 1891 to 1916 and this year celebrate the 100th anniversary. This is the longest and exciting railroad route connecting Western Part of Russia with the Far East. Its length is over 9 thousand kilometers, and it is spanning a record seven time zones. Many people dream about such a unique travel experience. Tourism Review, in collaboration with the leading inbound tour operator in Russia Olta Travel, brings some facts about taking a Trans-Siberian Journey in a popular infographics mode:

Date: 2016-03-07

Article link: <https://www.tourism-review.com/infographics-trans-siberian-railroad-news4920>