

THE BEST WAY TO SEE CENTRAL PARK - GET ON A BIKE!

Central Park is one of the most frequented places in New York City. Visitors now have a unique chance to enjoy it from a rather exciting perspective. Central Park Bike Tours offer guided cycling tours which uncover the park's history as well as hidden present.

Central Park is considered one of the most typical landmarks of New York and is thus one of the most popular places in the city. Some 25 million people come here every year to admire this spectacular natural wonder hidden in the midst of one of the world's greatest cities.

It is the most visited urban park in the United States and many come here to admire its rich fauna and flora as well as witness numerous art festivals and culture events organized throughout the year. There are dozens of hidden gems all over the park and it may become quite a mission to search for them alone. The park is vast and not many have the time to wonder around here for days. Many agree that rather than discovering Central Park on foot, it is much more exciting and rewarding to get on a bike and enjoy the scenery.

Sports enthusiasts may simply rent a bike and cycle on their own, however, those that wish to see the most grasping places and learn a little extra about the park's history as well as its secrets, are welcome to rely on Central Park Bike Tours. These organize highly enjoyable bike tours with experienced licensed guides who know the park literally inside out. Luckily, the tour is not very physically demanding and anyone willing to cycle for a bit is welcome to try.

Many travelers who have tried the Central Park Bike Rental admit this is the quickest and most convenient option to explore it from top to bottom, and visit - among other fascinating places - the Strawberry Fields, The Belvedere Castle, Bethesda Terrace, The Great Meadow, the Wollman Ice Skating Ring, and the Shakespeare Garden. The guides are very well informed and always add a little extra to the tour, making sure to include occasional stops to point out the best spots for taking pictures as well as allow the bikers a quick break.

Central Park is a fantastically conserved natural area with thousands of trees and beautiful flowers; Birdwatchers often gather here to admire some rare migratory species. Year on year, many art happenings and festivals attract culture enthusiasts, and feature concerts, exhibitions, as well as theater performances; the famous New York Shakespeare festival is partially organized here. The park is full of life and energy and that's what makes a visit here so special.

It is simply a must-see for anyone visiting New York City and why not try see it from a more fun perspective. Many tourists agree biking is the ideal way to explore Central Park and get the most out of it, especially when accompanied by someone with impeccable local knowledge who will make the two hours really count.
