

FINDING THE ULTIMATE LUXURY ESCAPE IN ST. BARTS

We all deserve to treat ourselves once in a while. If you think you deserve a big treat, or you have a particularly important event, such as a 50th birthday or a honeymoon, why not consider going to a luxury resort for a while? This is the perfect way to relax and unwind in true luxury. St. Barts is a breathtakingly gorgeous island located in the Caribbean, with white sands and clear water - almost too good to be true. If you are considering a luxurious location but aren't sure where to go, then this is definitely one to consider.

Working Out Your Budget

First, you must work out your budget for your getaway. These luxury getaways aren't cheap, but they are worth splashing the cash for. Also, if you are celebrating a once-in-a-lifetime event, visiting a Luxury Villa in St Barts is the perfect way to do so. St. Barts is filled with designer shops and amazing food, so if you are looking to experience life like a celebrity, this is the ideal spot.

Deciding How Long You Want to Go Away For

Next, you should decide on how long you want to go away for, which will help you with deciding your budget. If you are just spending a few nights away, maybe you could stretch to something more expensive, but if you're spending a week or two, this might affect which kind of villa you go for. This is probably the kind of trip that most people will have to save up for, but knowing what is at the end of it all will make it so worth it. You should try and keep all of the different things you'd like to do on your getaway in mind, and make sure you have enough time for it all.

Deciding What to Do on Your Trip

What you want to do on your trip may affect how long you stay for and what kind of accommodation you stay in. For instance, if you are planning on lying around, swimming in the pool and not being particularly active, then you might want something a little more private, as you will be spending a lot of time in your accommodation. However, if you are planning to be out and about doing various activities for most of the day, then maybe you don't mind as much about your accommodation. Ideally, you should try and plan your days out in advance, so that you have an itinerary for each day (even if this mainly consists of sunbathing!).

Treat yourself to the holiday of a lifetime and let yourself fully relax when you are there. Nothing refreshes you more like the sun, sand, sea and time to completely let go of all responsibility. This will be something that you remember and cherish for the rest of your days, so if it is something you are considering then you should definitely go for it!
